PLOT

Arrival and architecture

Cobbled courtyard, traditional fountain and Andalusian character

Classic Andalusian presence

The estate is approached through a cobbled courtyard centred around a traditional fountain, creating a strong sense of arrival. Mediterranean rooflines, shaded terraces, mature planting and hand-laid stonework establish the property's timeless architectural identity.

A double garage and independent staff apartment provide practical support for family living, guests or household management.

Elegant living and entertaining

Formal rooms, relaxed lounges, cinema room, wine cellar and private office spaces

Interior highlights

- Formal living room
- Separate dining room
- TV lounge and cinema room
- Wine cellar and games area
- Fully fitted kitchen
- Office and study areas
- Multiple fireplaces

Spacious reception areas open onto terraces, gardens and courtyards, creating a natural indoor-outdoor flow for family living and private entertaining.

Accommodation

Flexible bedroom arrangement across the main residence and guest accommodation

Private suites and guest areas

Villa Goya offers 8 bedrooms and 7 bathrooms, with accommodation arranged to support family living, visiting guests and household staff.

The master suite occupies a privileged upper-level position with a private salon, walk-in wardrobe, fireplace and terrace with uninterrupted sea views. A guest house near the pool and an independent staff apartment add privacy and flexibility.

Bedroom suites combine light interiors, classic proportions and refined Mediterranean finishes.

Outdoor living and leisure

Gardens, terraces, pool, gazebos, Jacuzzi and private tennis court

Estate, plots and location

Main estate plus tennis court plot of 6,140 m²

A rare double-plot holding

The asking price of €13.9 million includes the main Villa Goya estate together with the tennis court plot of 6,140 m², giving the property exceptional scale, privacy and long-term ownership value.

El Madronal is a secure gated enclave in the hills above Marbella, known for natural surroundings, low density, 24-hour security and easy access to the coast.
